DAVIS ADMINISTRATOR BEGINS STUDENT SERVICES V.P. DUTIES

Dr. Frank Rincon, a student services professional with more than 20 years of experience—most recently as vice chancellor at the University of California, Davis—joined Cal State this week as the new vice president for student services, succeeding Juan Gonzalez.

Prior to his two years as the chief student affairs officer at Davis, Rincon served as the dean of student life at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, TX and as the dean of students at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Teaneck, NJ. He also has been involved in student affairs work at Cal State, Los Angeles and Central Arizona College.

Commenting on Rincon's appointment, President Anthony Evans says, "The university is fortunate to have attracted a candidate of Frank Rincon's caliber. His extensive experience in all student service areas is extraordinary. His emphasis on service to students and the region matches beautifully the current priorities of Cal State, San Bernardino."

Echoing Evans' perspective, Rincon adds that Cal State is "poised at a very important time in the region to go forth and serve the many needs" of the citizens. "It's a dynamic university," he observes, noting that a better economy in the future may permit Cal State, San Bernardino to fulfill its educational mission more expansively.

"I have very positive feelings about the campus and the people I met. There was a sense of mission and cooperation ... while I was interviewing there," he says, adding that it is a "beautiful campus with beautiful buildings. It has a lot of pluses to it."

At CSUSB, Rincon will be responsible for overseeing admissions and records, the Career Center and Children's Center, enrollment services, financial aid, housing, international students, outreach, services to students with disabilities, student counseling and health services, student life, the Student Union and Upward Bound.

A native of Tucson, AZ, Rincon earned all of his degrees at the University of Arizona there. He holds a bachelor's in secondary education with an emphasis in teaching Spanish, a master's degree in education counseling and guidance and a Ph.D. in higher education and student personnel.

Active civically in the communities where he has worked and resided, Rincon has been associated most recently with a Sacramento-based Chicano and Latino youth leadership development program, the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce there and the United Way, among other organizations.

He and his wife, Diane, have two children—Sarah, 18, and Raul, 14.

BUDGET AWAITS ENROLLMENT TALLIES

The university budget is "status quo" until Oct. 12, which is census date and when the university's fall student enrollment figure will be tallied.

"For the first time ever in the history of the campus 30 percent of the university's budget" comes from student fees, noted Vice President David DeMauro (Administration and Finance) at an Aug. 22 Administrative Council meeting.

That makes the final enrollment figure critical to the operation of the campus. DeMauro said that the CSU system typically tolerates a two percent deviation from an enrollment goal before withholding funding from a campus. CSUSB's goal is 9,290 full-time students.

An increase of 85 full-time students, for example, could mean approximately $175,000 in additional revenue for the university, he said.

Additional costs this year are keeping the budget from being balanced by about $100,000, DeMauro reported. Some of these costs include approximately $120,000 in retirement monies, about $2.5 million in pay raises, payments that need to be made on an energy bond and the establishment of a centralized CSU "liability fund," which will run CSUSB $110,000.

Although the 10 percent student fee increase will mildly offset the $893,630 reduction in the governor's budget, about $600,000 of that new revenue will be rolled into student financial aid, DeMauro pointed out. The campus also will receive approximately $750,000 to open the new Health and Physical Education Complex.

About $275,000 in uncommitted lottery funds as well as unused personnel funding this year will help the campus balance its budget.

"We do have the specter of a 'trigger' coming out in December," noted President Evans, explaining that the state built into its budget a process for further reductions if revenues do not meet expectations.

"We're in there fighting, not losing ground. It's still going to be a challenging year."

WOMAN SAFE AFTER DAYTIME ROBBERY

A female student was held from behind and robbed in broad daylight Aug. 31 near her car in parking lot C.

At about 11:40 a.m., a black male, who was not using a weapon, approached the woman from behind, pushed her against her car, wrapped his arm around her neck and demanded money, says Stephen Nowicki, acting director (Public Safety).

After the student gave the man $42 in cash, he asked her "questions of a sexual nature," Nowicki says, and then demanded the student's car keys.

The man tightened his grip around the woman's neck when she refused, he demanded the car keys again and was rebuffed again by his victim. He then released her and fled on foot toward Northpark Boulevard.

The robbery was not reported until the following day, says Nowicki, because the woman was too frightened. No witnesses to the crime were identified as of Sept. 1.

PFAU RIBBON-CUTTING SET FOR SEPT. 26

The first of several events celebrating the opening of the Pfau Library's new wing will be held at noon on Sept. 26 on the Andrews-Hill Plaza.

Campus representatives, contractors and architects will make brief remarks and the campus community is invited to enjoy light refreshments being served throughout the hour. Tours of the new building also will be available and signs announcing them will be posted throughout the library.

A major community and campus event is scheduled for March.

The Andrews-Hill Plaza—the open area directly in front of the new wing—was named after Anna Jane and Herbert J. Hill Andrews, whose generous gift helped finance the construction of the building.

LEADING EGYPTOLOGIST TALKS ABOUT PYRAMID DISCOVERY

Prof. Zahi Hawass

The world's leading authority on Old Kingdom pyramids, Prof. Zahi Hawass, will discuss the discovery of another pyramid in the Cheops complex on Friday, Sept. 23 at Cal State, San Bernardino. His lecture is free and begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall. As an Egyptologist, Hawass has been the director general of the Giza Plateau since 1987. His expertise in the area of kingdom pyramids and the Sphinx at Giza has made him a widely consulted authority.

Championing world-wide support of the restoration and preservation of such monuments, Hawass has published much material on Old Kingdom architecture and sculpture. He is now working on Egyptian discoveries in Yemen.

WELCOME BACK TO ALL STAFF, FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATORS. "HELLO" TO ALL THAT ARE NEW. HAVE A GOOD YEAR!

STUDENT UNION DESIGN EARNS REBATE AWARD

An $8,990 energy-conservation rebate was awarded by Southern California Edison to Cal State last month for the design of the new Student Union.

Every building in California must meet state energy conservation requirements, says David DeMauro (Administration and Finance), but to get a rebate you must go above and beyond the standards.

The use of more energy-efficient light fixtures, controls and ventilation equipment were among the reasons cited for the award. This is at least the third major rebate given the university by SCE. University Hall and the thermal energy storage tank also had received rebates.

CSU system policy requires that the award money be used for further energy conservation improvements. The $8,990 will go toward a new, $96,000 air conditioning system in the Student Union. Work on the project could begin soon, but details on contracts are still being ironed out, say university officials.

IN MEMORIAM

The campus community extends sympathies to Irv Howard (Secondary and Vocational Education), whose father, Sol Howard, died Aug. 6. Sol Howard lived in Tamarac, FL.

Sympathies also go to Bernie Moyeda (Grounds Maintenance), whose brother, Richard, died on Aug. 3.

THANK YOU

Special thanks from Karen Logue (Human Resources) "... for your prayers and support during this difficult time following the loss of my mother. They were greatly appreciated."

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Mary Colacurcio (Alumni Affairs) held a picnic during her August vacation for all CSUSB alumni living in Seattle, WA, where she gave them an update on new and proposed buildings for the university.

Tom Pierce (Economics) spoke to the San Bernardino Lions Club on Aug. 4 about "Current U.S. Economic Conditions."

COUNSELING CENTER STAFFED FOR FALL

Whether you're battling depression or an eating disorder, facing major changes in your life or issues of self-esteem, or simply hoping to take some steps in your personal growth, you now can obtain affordable and confidential psychological counseling through the Community Counseling Center right here on campus.

The center will be open for the fall quarter beginning Sept. 26. The one-on-one counseling sessions are conducted by qualified Cal State graduate students, who work under the supervision of Psychology Department faculty. Dr. David Chavez, a Cal State assistant professor of psychology, serves as the center's director.

A $10 fee is charged for each 50-minute counseling session. However, the center does operate on a sliding scale.

The center focuses on counseling for individuals. Child, family and couples counseling is not available. Day or evening appointments may be scheduled. While the center does not treat drug or alcohol addiction or those who may be suicidal, referrals can be made in such cases.

For more information, call the Community Counseling Center at Ext. 5569.

Fun Flicks TOTALLY INTERACTIVE VIDEO

"MAKE ME A STAR!"

It's totally interactive!

It's totally fun!

It's totally a quarter-million dollars worth of equipment, costumes, props and more than 85,000 Hollywood-style effects with the Fun Flicks totally interactive video studio coming to Cal State Sept. 26.

Running from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Student Union Lounge, the specialty show makes you the star using some of the most sophisticated sound and video equipment built. General admission is free for students and $5 for faculty and staff.

THE BULLETIN BOARD

YOU MEAN, EDUCATION CAN BE FUNNY?

You bet. And stand-up comedian and educator Jay Wissot will prove it Sept. 20 during Extended Education's open house, which runs from 4:30-7 p.m.

Held in the Foundation Building, the free event is a chance for those interested in learning more about certificate programs offered by Extended Education. A clown doing face painting and balloon tricks, Wissot's show at 5:45, hot dogs, sodas and cookies, door prizes and discounts on registration all will be a part of the fun.

CALLING ALL MENTORS

The Undergraduate Studies Office will introduce its All-for-One Mentor Program this fall. A "mentor-style" program for first-year freshmen, the program will assist students in making the transition to Cal State as smooth as possible. Students will be matched with experienced CSUSB members—faculty, staff and administrators, who will work with them one-on-one during the school year.

For more information, call the Dean of Undergraduate Studies Office at Ext. 5032.

LIBRARIANS ARE FACULTY PEOPLE, TOO

... And one we left out. Les Kong also was awarded tenure along with the many faculty listed in the Aug. 25 issue of The Friday Bulletin. (Sorry, Les ... and congratulations.)

WEDDING BELLS

Congratulations to Bob Blackey (History) on his marriage to Carol Pixton on Aug. 30 in Riverside. The ceremony was performed by Judge Jean Leonard, a former student of Blackey's. The couple will live in Claremont.
